ABOUT COACHING:

Coaches in life and business should be selected for their proven skill in a given area which would match the area in which a person would like to improve. This will maximize the effectiveness of coaching. Just as a successful sports team would hire a professional coach to improve team performance, an individual or company would seek a professional life or business coach who has demonstrated leadership in the specific coaching niche you are looking for improvement in. It is important for an individual seeking a life coach to research the coach's experience in a given niche : business, family, personal, relationship, etc.
